CANDIDATES FOR GOVERNOR.

The names of Lieut.-Gov. George H. Frouty of Newport, Allen S. Fletcher of Cavendish, ex-Lieut.-Gov. Zed S. Stanton of Roxbury, and H. N. Turner of St. Johnsbury have been mentioned more or less frequently of late as probable or possible candidates for governor next year. The Times would like to suggest a name to add to the list, that of our present governor, Fletcher D. Proctor. If the idea of continuing good men in office ever had any virtue (and The Times thoroughly believes in it) it could not be better applied than in this instance. The Times wasn't an ardent supporter of the governor when he was being considered as a candidate for the nomination two years ago, for it thought him simply a seeker after the office for what honor there was in it; but the governor has proved an honor to the office fully as much as he has been honored by it. There is in Vermont an honest admiration for Governor Hughes and the good he has accomplished against strong opposition through the legislature of that state. Governor Hughes merits it, but in a similar way Governor Proctor was influential in accomplishing much through our own legislature at the last session. Governor Hughes secured the passage of the public utilities bill; Governor Proctor by his active and aggressive advocacy of the railroad bill secured similar results in this state, and while perhaps not working actively for its passage, it was only through the knowledge that he would approve that the weekly payment bill was carried in the Senate against the most aggressive opposition of the railroads and large corporations. Furthermore, the governor has given the state a thorough business administration in all its affairs. It was claimed by some two years ago that Governor Bell would have made a way for a second term against the field; if Mr. Proctor had not been a candidate, and there were many then who had reached the belief that continuous rotation in office wasn't the best course for the state. If this idea is to grow, now is the time to try it, when the state would be the gainer by keeping the present governor in office for another term.

MONTPELIER

Mrs. Mary Marshall, an aged woman, was knocked down at the corner of Main and State streets about three o'clock Saturday afternoon by a Spaniard who was riding a bicycle. Officer Fitzgerald arrested the Spaniard taking him to the police station. The woman was apparently not seriously hurt.

The football situation in the two preparatory schools of the city is promising. Both teams are hard at practice. Montpelier seminary's eleven will play its first game this afternoon against the alumni of the school. Both teams have several of last year's players in their line-up.

Mr. and Mrs. John Portal, of the Middlesex Center road, celebrated the 15th anniversary of their marriage Friday evening by inviting their friends and neighbors to come and spend the evening with them. Over 100 from this city availed themselves of the opportunity going in barges and carriages. Patterson's orchestra furnished music for dancing which took place in three different rooms.

There was card playing also and singing and general good time for everyone; refreshments being served. A pure was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Portal by their friends. The high regard in which Mr. and Mrs. Portal are held was demonstrated by the large attendance. A most enjoyable evening was passed by everyone present. Mr. and Mrs. Portal making admirable host and hostess.

Mrs. Pauline Gravelle, a well known woman in Catholic circles, died at her home Saturday morning. She got out of bed and fainted, never recovering consciousness. Death was due to breaking of a blood vessel. She was 76 years old and is survived by one son, Napoleon, of Rutland, and three daughters, Mrs. Fred Edmunds and Miss Ella, of Montpelier, and Mrs. C. E. Potter of Mt. Airy, N. J.

The Washington county court was reconvened at two o'clock this afternoon when the Massena-Tomas case was again taken up. The grand jury will probably be in session for several days before closing its work as several witnesses have been called to appear this week before that body. Several witnesses from Northfield will be examined by the body today.

While waiting for the mail train from the south at Montpelier Junction Friday afternoon E. G. Williams went out gunning for woodchucks, two of which are fattening on the clover just west of the station. His maneuvers to get close enough for a good shot was watched by the belated travelers with great interest, but the cute little ground hog dropped into its burrow before the bullet got there. Mr. Williams says he shot and killed a woodchuck the other day but hasn't the poit to show unbelievers.

James E. Davidson of this city is now president of the Consolidated Lighting company, which office he holds in connection with that of manager of the company, a position he has well filled since the new ownership of the company began. Charles Davidson is the secretary. The directors of the company are expected to hold a meeting shortly in this city, will visit the Bolton Falls and Middlesex plants, also Barre city and the quarries, where new machinery, new buildings and extensions have been made during the year.

THE FIGHT OF FAITH

Was the Subject of Rev. Wm. Braisted's

FIRST SERMON AS PASTOR

Of the Barre Baptist Church—He Begins His Pastorate With an Able Sermon—A Large Congregation Present.

The Rev. William Braisted, the new pastor at the First Baptist church preached his initial sermon yesterday morning to a large congregation. Mr. Braisted is a convincing speaker and held the congregation until the last word of his sermon. The minister's subject was "The Fight of Faith," and the text was taken from 1 Timothy 6—12, "Fight the good fight of the faith, lay hold the life eternal."

Mr. Braisted began his address by speaking of the immense number of people in the world and called the congregations attention to the fact that this immense number was but a small fraction of the number which had existed upon the earth since its creation and he said that all these people fought the fight, fighting either for or against some faith or belief. He said that this had always been the condition and that the devil was offering the same temptations to us today that he offered to Eve in the garden although in different ways; ever since Eve ate the apple the fight of the faith has been raging. He spoke of the heroism of the early Christians and of the suffering and persecution which they underwent in the first three hundred years of Christianity; of the resignation of Paul when he was sentenced to die in comparison with some of the latter day Christians. The speaker said that there had never been but one faith delivered by God and that God stood for one thing and stood for another and that all persons must choose between them. He stated that unbelief in God and Christ, his son, had ceased to exist and said that it was lucky the Voltaire and Ingalls died when they did as all are believers in the faith now. He said that the great peril now was not in unbelief but in indifference and that Christ and his teachings were not accepted as they should be. Opposing faith to reason he said that not faith but unbelief is the unreasonable thing. He spoke of the religion of some of the so-called heathen races as compared with the sham religion of some who profess Christianity saying that the religion of the heathen was far preferable to that which is put on for appearance.

Mr. Braisted said that the standard was the same for a man or a woman and that a man should live just the same clean life that a woman is expected to live. He spoke of the faith which is dead and said that faith which is sluggish and shows no appearance of life has the same comparison to the life faith as the dead body of a human being has to that of a live one. It takes life to beget life and to accomplish that for which every true Christian is striving the faith should be alive, bounding and full of vigor. Fight the good fight and live the true life and grasp at last eternal life.

JINGLES AND JESTS

Wasted Hours.

In the days when piano lessons were thought a necessary part of a young woman's education, without regard to aptitude, the head of a fashionable school in St. Petersburg, asked Rubinstein how many hours a day her pupils should practice the piano.

"None," was the laconic response of the great pianist.—Youth's Companion.

THE TOYLAND GRIZZLY.

I am a ferocious Teddy bear,
Eddy Bear;
I like to eat dollies with golden hair,
Olden hair;
As through the Toyland woods I prowled,
Whenever I hear a lone dolly howl
I pounce on her with an awful growl—
An awfully awful growl.

They say I'm an undesirable cit,
Irable cit;
But they can't show any girlie I've bit,
Irle I've bit;
For I love to be bossed by a little maid;
I'm gentle to girls, so they're not afraid,
And I'm good as can be when I'm on parade—
When I'm out on a street parade.

But when it comes night in the nursery room,
Urnsy room,
My glaring white teeth shine through the gloom;
On the gloom;
I hunt for the dollies 'mong kites and tops,
And I chase the creatures until they drop;
And I swallow 'em down and lick my chops—
My silvery slivery chops!

—Denver Republican.

Not Flat.

The ancients thought the earth was flat
And right they were;
There's not a bit of doubt of that,
I must aver.
They had no bridge, benighted dubs,
No brain storms then;
They had no cigarettes or clubs
Like modern men.

They had no chorus girls, no grait;
No car ahead.
They had no Foraker, no Taft,
No valiant Ted,
They had no mergers in their day,
No rye or gin.
They thought the world was flat, and
say,
It must have been.
